Laval Students Pay Friendly Visit to McGill and Attest their Sympathy for Students' Side of Case

LAVAL OFFER SUPPORT IN TIME OF TROUBLE

"Although we are of a different nationality and attend a college far smaller than yours if the occasion ever arises, we, the undergraduates of Laval University, will only be too glad to help you to resist the assaults of the Montreal police."

From the steps of the Arts Building M. Ruppre of Laval University delivered this short speech on behalf of his fellow students who after hearing of the trouble between the students and the Montreal Police Force on Friday last felt that they ought to join hands with McGill and so attain the strength of unity.

Two hundred men with velvet hats marching around the campus with banners flying and canes waving made a strange sight for those who were about the buildings yesterday morning but coming from the students of Laval from whom we hear so little it was a pleasant surprise. After this speech the visitors from St. Denis St. called for a reply. After some hesitancy Mr. Duclos was helped up onto the steps and in a short speech on behalf of the McGill students thanked Mr. Deupre for this kind offer saying that in future if any clash with the law was likely to materialize they would most certainly remember this offer.

After cheering Mr. Duclos they marched up to the Medical Building where M. Dufresne addressed the Meds. in French to which Mr. Hartman, president of Med. '16 replied most eloquently.

The Laval boys then continued on their way going down University St. and back to the Science where another of their number addressed the Science students who gave them a very good reception. Mr. Monet of Science '13 rose to the occasion replying in French being loudly cheered and clapped.

The Faculties of Medicine, Civil Engineering and Law were represented in this column which after attending communion at St. James Cathedral marched up in good order singing and yelling without the pleasant company of our friend, Capt. Dice and his trusty band of stalwarts.

EDUCATION IMMIGRANTS MEANS BUILDING UP OF THE NATION

Industrial Service the First Step Towards Assimilation of Foreigners as Competent Canadian Citizens

STUDENTS FOREIGNERS AND COUNTRY BENEFIT

A supper was given yesterday at 6 o'clock in Strathcona Hall to all those who were interested in industrial service. There was an attendance of over 50. Following the supper, Mr. Lee was introduced to the assembly and asked to speak. The latter then arose and expounded in measured tones the colossal problems involved in dealing with the enormous and increasing number of immigrants who arrive in Canada every year. Canada is a nation in the making, and this huge tide of immigration is absolutely necessary for the full development of the country, but unless it is properly dealt with, the presence of so many foreigners will become a national menace. To further this building-up of the nation is one of the duties which is incumbent upon every Canadian Citizen, but, in virtue both of their position and of their opportunities, College men must play the leading part, and in this respect it is peculiarly fitting that the first steps in this direction should be taken by McGill men.

The history of the world is really composed of a catalogue of the migrations and immigrations of peoples, but the immigration with which we have to deal is of a radically different nature. In the first case we are concerned with the movements of races as a whole, but in our own case we have to deal with the placing of comparatively small bodies of foreigners of diverse nations into the midst of a democratic and united community, a very difficult and vital problem. The difference may be summarized by saying that this immigration is individual as opposed to national.

It is a fact, gleaned from close observation of facts and conditions, that the immigrant cannot choose his own conditions of life. Several causes contribute to this among the chief of which is that the immigrant usually has to maintain a family in Europe, and has therefore to live as economical as possible himself. It is this, and no national tendency to unhealthy and unhygienic conditions which induces them to herd together in cheap boarding houses.

This unhealthy living, combined with the change in climate and conditions of work combine to produce most serious results in succeeding generations, a very grave danger to the nation. This may however be greatly mitigated by the proper assimilation of immigrants into the community, more especially with respect to language, customs, and laws, and the attitude in which the Canadian Citizens regard them. A very good idea of the utility, and work of such men is provided in the accompanying poem. For the benefit of those who have never worked on a Construction Gang we may state that a "Wop" is a foreign labourer, usually Italian.

THE WOP.

When the line is surveyed through the scenery

For turned and culvert and cut
When the contractor has his machinery

The "Big job" is ready—all but—
"All but" means the shovel and pick of it

The hunkies who work till they drop

And so, in the dust and the thick of it

Look for the Wop.

The big bosses bear all the fret of it
They are the fellows who plan
But the backbreaking strain and the sweat of it

Fall to the labouring man
Dagos and Russ and Hungarian—
All of the immigrant coop—
Where is the job we could carry on
Save for the Wop!

Subject of scorn and bedeviling;
Victim of fraud and chicanery—
Still with his spade he is levelling
Routes over mountain and plain.
Progress? His soul is the breath of it;
Locking his hand, it would stop;
Facing the danger and death of it,
Here is the Wop!

He knows the hardest and worst of it;

He knows the hard-driven toil,
The ache and the heat and thirst of it—

Never the dream—or the spoil—
Caves and explosions make mud of him

THE ENTENTE CORDIALE

The visit from our Laval brothers yesterday morning came as a complete but none the less pleasant surprise. It is a still further evidence of the increasing good feeling which exists between the students of these two large and influential universities.

Long ago, but well within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, the students of the two colleges used to be at war. Six years ago an entente cordiale was established between them and ever since there has been the best of good feeling and friendship.

The visit of over two hundred undergraduates from Laval, yesterday morning with yells and flags was inspired by a desire to give an outward and visible manifestation of this spirit.

The circumstances which induced this affair yesterday were the collision by McGill men, with the Police force on Saturday last.

The Laval students professed an undying spirit of brotherhood for McGill men and assured them that they would follow them through thick and through thin in fair weather or foul, against all unjust onslaughts by the guardians of the peace.

That a union between the students of the two Universities for the purpose of resisting attacks by the police is a desirable or feasible arrangement or one likely to ever occur we very much doubt, but we do appreciate the kindly feeling which prompted yesterday's visit. Long Live Laval!

PHYSICAL CULTURE

To-day the classes in physical culture commence for the season at the University Gymnasium under the direction of Mr. W. S. Lamb, the new instructor. Mr. Lamb has provided an extensive programme of work along lines which should appeal to those students who for one reason or another are unable to participate in the many outdoor sports which are carried on in this University.

It now rests with the undergraduates as to whether or not they shall take advantage of the opportunities for physical development which the university authorities have provided for them.

There is no necessity for a reiteration here of the many physical benefits which accrue to the man who follows a course of systematic muscular development. What we wish to impress upon our readers is the facility with which they can take the steps necessary to obtain these manifold advantages. The gymnasium is but a block from the college gates. An experienced and capable instructor is willing and anxious to help them remedy their physical deficiencies or to teach them to make a more systematic and beneficial use of their muscular powers. There is no fee which they must pay before commencing the course and lastly the classes take place at an hour in the day when but few students are actively engaged in academic pursuits.

WITNESSES WANTED.

Plenty of evidence has been secured regarding many of the various phases of Friday's clash with the police but much is still wanted. The Council have expressed a desire to secure information from eyewitnesses of the arrests of the four students waiting trial. If you saw any of these men arrested by the police your evidence may prove more valuable than that dealing with other phases of the question. Tell the committee what you saw and lighten their labour.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

We should like to draw the attention of students to the very material benefits which may be derived from undertaking to teach English to Foreigners under the Industrial Service. Only an hour, per evening, once a week is required and no preparation or knowledge of a foreign language. Anyone willing to undertake this or who wishes for further particulars should apply at Strathcona Hall.

at 4.15 p.m., and all entries must be sent in to the secretary at the Arts Building before Wednesday morning. The course this year has been considerably shortened and will cover a distance of only five miles and a half. A silver cup will be given to the winner of the race, and the next five men to finish will be given handsome silver medals. The teams to compete in the Intercollegiate run at Kingston on Nov. 2nd will be composed of the first six men to finish. The Harrier Club relies this year upon new men to win another championship, as practically all of last year's team will not be running. Russell is counted on to bring us first place, and Walsh is also doing first-rate work. Two men, however, cannot win a championship distance, and it is hoped that those who have any long distance ability will turn out without any further delay. There will be a run Friday and another on Monday at 4.45 p.m., at which the runners will be trained by Bailey, the American ten-mile champion, who has kindly consented to coach the team. SUCCESSFUL TRICK PLAYS PULLED OFF IN PRACTICE

Second Team Unable to Resist Impetuous Onslaught of Gridiron Veterans

QUEENS SENDS PLAY HERE FOR FIRST TIME

The workout held yesterday by the second team was a success.

Some new trick plays were tried in yesterday's practice and worked without a hitch.

On more than one occasion Fisher, Paisley or McEwen were able to dash through a hole left open in the second line because of the lack of co-ordination of the line.

Fisher's men thought the ball was going elsewhere. Shaughnessy is a great believer in trick plays and keeps the team working away at them so that by Saturday they can always be sure of working them without the least hitch.

There were a few minor accidents, but nothing which seemed at all serious. Timmins had a sore leg bruised again but was able to make the trip around the track all right.

Wollatt had his arm twisted and had to retire from the field but he will be out again to-morrow to practice.

Chuck had his forehead split again, but it takes a good deal to put our big wing man out. If nothing serious happens in to-day's practice the team as a whole will enter the Varsity game in a very fit condition.

The seniors in uniform yesterday included Draper, Fisher, Paisley, McEwen, Wollatt, Laine, Lewis, Watrous, Matheson, Timmins, Reid, Montgomery, Cruikshanks, Bignall, Masson, Billington and Wilkes.

The second team are practicing hard for their game with Queen's on Saturday morning. They are all very eager to atone for having allowed R.M.C. to pile up such a big score last Saturday.

The following telegram was received from Varsity yesterday morning:

"Can you let Toronto University have 100 reserved seats for McGill vs. Toronto game this Saturday? We could easily use more but know that your accommodation is limited. Please answer as soon as possible."

From the foregoing it is quite evident that Varsity are going to spare no effort in winning this game. They have an organized Rooters' Club for whom they want these seats and we ought to hear some fine cheering when the rival rooters get busy.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Those passing runs worked splendidly yesterday and we ought to be able this year to show Varsity something at their own game.

If Billington is able to get into the game on Saturday, Varsity are sure to have many anxious moments, for a man who can put drop kicks over the bar from 45 to 50 yard lines is always a source of worry to the opposing team.

Nothing would please Buster Matheson better than to be able, on Saturday, to repeat the famous touch down which he scored against Varsity in the fall of '09 when McGill won out 9-7.

A Rooters' Club lends a great attraction to a football game and with both McGill and Varsity re-entrance by their respective clubs there will be any amount of cheering. Let us only hope that the McGill rooters will have more occasion to raise their voices than the supporters of the Blue and White.

It is officially reported that Jack Maynard will not be in the game on Saturday as his ankle is worse than was at first thought. With Maynard out of the game the Toronto back division will be without its veteran. Coster and Cusner the other two men behind the line being new men on the team.

With the Tennis Tournament between McGill R.M.C., Toronto and Queen's going on to-day and to-morrow, the Intercollegiate Track Meet to-morrow, Queen's second here on Saturday morning and Varsity here Saturday afternoon, there is every chance of McGill students having a great deal to be proud of on Saturday evening.

Those who went to Toronto with the Tennis Team are A. L. S. Mills (Capt.); R. C. Dempster, R. P. Egerton, F. S. Jackson, E. B. Atkins, (manager).

Paisley, Draper and Masson or Fisher make a very fast back division. Last Saturday the ground was so slippery that they did not have a chance to display their speed; but the Varsity outside wings will have to get over the ground faster than did those of Queen's if they hope to hold down our backs.

If Saturday is a fine day the crowd inside the McGill grounds will certainly be a record one and ought to tax the capacity of the stands to their utmost.

The Second Team have strengthened materially since Saturday and they have the very good example set by the seniors last Saturday to follow ought to pull off a victory.

When the Senior Team goes to Kingston the Second Team will go along to play Queen's II. This will make two consecutive week ends in which the seniors will play R.M.C. as they also go there to play R.M.C.

Billy MacMaster and Hammy Gordon, the officials of last Saturday's game in Ottawa, will head Tuesday's practice and were heard to say that the McGill team would have to play better than ever they have done previously if they wish to figure in the championship race.

Y. M. C. A. AT HOME.

Yesterday afternoon the Y.M.C.A. held its annual "At Home" in the Common Room of the R.V.C. Mrs. Adams, the honorary president and Miss Hurlbatt received with Miss Mount. As the tea is a reception for the freshettes there were many of them present, also a number of graduates were seen among the girls who filled the large room.

Miss Saunders, the new general Secretary of the Dominion Council of the Y.M.C.A. was our honoured guest. At the close of the afternoon Miss Mount addressed the assembled company, explaining the aims of the society. Miss Hurlbatt followed her with a few appropriate remarks and introduced Miss Saunders, which we feel a special tie because she is a graduate of the same college as Miss Hurlbatt. Miss Saunders spoke of the Y.M.C.A. work in Canada, Great Britain, Bulgaria, and Japan, thus giving us some idea of the great importance of the Y.M.C.A. work and its wide and productive effects.

Miss Saunders is to be the guest of Miss Hurlbatt next week and we hope that while she is here we may have the pleasure of hearing her again.

NEW CLUB SUCCESSFUL START MATTER FOR CONGRATULATION

Largely Attended Meeting of the Railway Club was Held Last Night

The McGill Railway Club held its first meeting for the year 1912-13 last night in Room 35, Science Building. It was the best attended meeting that the Club has ever had, there being about fifty students present besides the speakers for the evening. After the lecture the business of the club was taken up.

President J. Hall introduced Professor V. I. Smart who spoke on the various kinds of railway signals. He explained the different kinds of signalling and said that signalling was mainly for the purpose of telling the engineer where to stop and to give him time to do so. There are two kinds of signals now in use—the home signal, and the distance signal. The difference between these is as follows: In the case of the home signal the engineer must not proceed farther, if the signal reads to stop; the distance signal gives a warning to the engineer that there is a home signal near and that he has just about time to stop the train between this and the home signal. Formerly there was practically no difference in the signals but lately changes have been made so that the difference is easily seen. The lecturer then explained the meaning of the various signals, and the system used at night, when signals are given by means of colored lights.

Professor Smart went on to say that the two great systems now in use are the interlocking and block systems. The interlocking system is a system of levers, with which it is possible to set the signals at a distance from them, and which cannot be manipulated so that the wrong signal is given. Recently, however, electric power has been used to set the signals, the result being that signals at as great a distance as one half of a mile can be set. A failure in the working of the interlocking will result in an indistinct signal, and the normal position is at stop. In the use of these at railway crossings there is a derailing attachment so that an engineer taking the switch when the signal reads stop is derailed.

The block system is simply a series of interlocking stations, and the usual way that these are used to safeguard the public is by allowing but one train to each block or distance between two stations. The results are as good as any double track system.

The lecturer then explained his lecture by means of lantern slides showing all the kinds of signals and stations which he had mentioned.

President Hall on behalf of those present tendered a vote of thanks to Professor Smart.

Professor Key said a little regarding the matter of signals, and remarked that if railroad men knew the value of signalling there would be very little necessity of so much double-tracking. He also said that with a good system of signalling it was possible to handle a very dense traffic on a single track line. He congratulated the club on the good attendance.

Mr. A. H. Goodchild, auditor of stores and mechanical accounts for the C.P.R., congratulated the club on the splendid attendance and spoke of the good the club could do.

Mr. James Powell, secretary of the Canadian Railway Club said that any undergraduates at the University would be welcomed at the meetings of the Canadian Railway Club. He was pleased with the attendance and believed that the Club should meet twice a week.

The business of the Club was then taken up and the secretary Hamer read the constitution, which was accepted. Mr. Powell suggested that the club print the proceedings for the year, and mentioned that fifty cents, the annual fee, would not cover the cost of printing. The matter was left over till the club was better able to discuss it.

Mr. Goodchild advised the Club to elect another man on the executive to prevent a deadlock.

The president at the close of the meeting remarked that there would be a meeting of the executive of the Club in a few days and that a programme for the year would be arranged. It is thought that there will be a few trips taken around the city, such as the harbor, the G. T. R. and C. P. R. shops.

Any member of the University may join the Club. The fee is fifty cents for the college year. The officers are as follows:

President—J. Hall.
Secretary—T. M. Hamer
Committee—Messrs. Parkins and Lawrence.

EDUCATION IMMIGRANTS

Who cares a damn? Let him drop! Progress is stained with the blood of him—

Only a Wop!

The fact that at present the immigrant, even after a number of years, remains, in nearly all cases, totally unacquainted even with the language has been proved over and over again by statistics gathered from those who return to fetch their families from Europe, the most successful type of immigrant we have. This fact may be almost entirely attributed to the fact that from the time he lands the immigrant has to work, and work hard, leaving him very little time for other pursuits.

There are at present several institutions for the correction of this state of affairs, but they are all handicapped by the lack of leaders and men who are willing to devote the requisite time and attention to teaching.

This problem not only affects those who come into contact with the men, namely the engineers, but it is a problem of national even imperial importance, and one which demands an immediate solution. The effect of the non-assimilation of immigrants into the national life may be considered under four headings. Primarily its effect on the general physique of the nation is of profound importance. This effect is chiefly brought out in the succeeding generations, and thus unless it is seriously tackled immediately, it will be many years before the evil results can be eradicated. It is notable, in this connection, that at the last meeting of the Committee of Public Health every subject dealt with was directly concerned with the problem of immigration.

Socially and politically it is most dangerous to give the full rights of citizenship, in accordance with the democratic ideal, to every man, whether he be entirely ignorant of our law and language or not. The direct consequences of this may be seen in the amount of political graft prevalent in the Western Provinces.

The Religious and Moral effect is clear immediately we examine statistics regarding criminality. In the United States we find that the number of criminal cases per hear of the population is twice as high among the foreign immigrants as among those born in the country and in the case of the children this proportion is as high as three to one.

Professional and college men little realise how intimately the problem concerns them. As an example let us consider the relationship to college men. The Science man will be intimately concerned with it immediately he leaves college and starts the practical part of his life. The Theological student will find in it one of his best opportunities for work in spreading the Christian religion and its social and moral teachings. The Medical student will be brought face to face with it in his practice, mastered only in that branch known as Preventive Medicine. The Arts student has to deal with its social and political aspects. Thus we see that no student can afford to neglect its significance, quite apart from his position as a citizen.

The fundamental method of remedying this state of affairs is of course the teaching of our English language to these foreigners. This is carried out to a rapidly increasing extent by a system of Industrial Service. Hard headed men of business, state in all seriousness that a knowledge of our language increases the efficiency of a worker by at least 25 per cent, and that is a conservative estimate.

This Industrial Service aims at bringing together the foreigners and the student, both of whom are vitally affected by the problem. To the former it offers a simple method of gaining a rudimentary idea of the English language, to the latter some experience with the class of man with whom he will probably be required to deal in his work. To make this system practicable it was necessary to devise some simple method or system of teaching the language which neither demands too much preparation from the already busy student nor too much concentration from the workman, usually tired after a hard day's work.

To meet this demand the Roberts' system of teaching English was devised. This system is found to teach at least 55 English words in an hour to all ordinary men without demanding any particular application or mental capacity. The principle of the method is strictly logical, the underlying idea being to describe the normal every day doings of a man from the time he rises in the morning to the time at which he goes to bed. Large charts are drawn up, one for each lesson, describing simple actions which may easily be imitated before the class. The teacher first makes the men repeat the sentences after him, to obtain the correct pronunciation, he then carries out the action before the class, conveying the meaning to them. The chart is then shown to them, and they become acquainted with the appearance of the words, and finally they write them and are taught the elements of grammar.

There are several courses in this system, the most important one being the Domestic Course which deals with the events of every day life. There are in addition Industrial or Technical and Commercial courses, teach the men the terms of their trade, and the element of business in this country respectively.

Having thus seen the objects of the Industrial Service Movement, and the methods adopted for achieving them we may deal briefly with the past history and future possibilities. There are at present well over a thousand students in Canada and the United States actually engaged in teaching English by this method, with the most gratifying results. We have only to ask those who have taken part in this teaching system for their opinions of the results, and its success is obvious. Nevertheless the Movement is handicapped by the lack of students willing to undertake teaching duties, and it is hoped that McGill men, as representative of the most advanced thought and practice of the younger generation of Canadians, will make a determined effort to help on the Movement in Montreal, thus setting an example which will be followed by other bodies of students. Apart from the material gain which is undoubtedly received by the student who undertakes such duties, he is fulfilling a high and public spirited task and one which will help ultimately to make the Canadian nation the greatest in the Empire which the world has ever seen.

On the conclusion of Mr. Lee's address, a large number of the audience volunteered for teaching service, a gratifying result to a most interesting and clearly reasoned statement of the case. Mr. Lee hopes to be with us again in February and to meet all those who have taken part in the work, and discuss matters concerning the Movement. All those who are interested should communicate with the Secretary of the McGill Y.M.C.A.

BOXING, WRESTLING AND FENCING CLUB

Will Hold Opening Class in Gymnasium this p. m.

The Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing Club of the University will meet for its first class this afternoon at 4.15 in the gym, and all interested in these sports are invited to be on hand.

The Club which was lately reorganized has started the season with unusual enthusiasm and the expressed determination to get down to hard work from the beginning.

Most of the men who were in the game last year are back at McGill. It is expected that every man who was on the Intercollegiate team last winter as well as such former stars as Hugh Jones, and Macbeth will turn out again, while the crop of likely pugilists, "wrestlers" and fencers from the Freshmen years, if rumor may be trusted, is something to marvel at.

The Gymnasium authorities are giving the club every possible assistance and it is expected that three classes a week will be held at hours convenient to the majority of members. The best instructors in the city are being obtained and with a view to opening these sports to every one the fee has been reduced substantially.

It is early to prophesy but McGill's prospects of carrying off the Intercollegiate championship from the annual tournament, have never been fairer. Let the Queen's men look to their laurels!

ARTS UNDERGRAD SOCIETY

The annual election of the Society takes place to-day in the Arts Bldg. The constitution of the Society is different from that of the other undergrad. societies in that only the president is elected in the spring, the rest of the officers being elected in the fall. Nominations have been received as follows:

Vice-Pres.—Mr. R. T. Gale
Mr. Ben. McDiarmid
Treasurer—Mr. E. Ducloux
Mr. M. Sutherland
Mr. G. Abbott.
Secretary—Mr. J. Hall
Mr. Risteen
Mr. Grigg
Mr. Lighthall
Mr. Thompson.

Of these officers, the vice-president comes from the third year, treasurer from the second year and secretary from the first year. Voting will continue from 9 until 1.

THE C. P. R.

The following lines were found written in the Guest Book of Lake Louise Chalet at Loggan, in the Rocky Mountains.

Oh, travellers who journey here,
How can you be so blind?
You sing Louise's waters clear,
With snowy peaks behind.
Lake Agnes and Lake Mirror high,
Yet o'er them like a star
There towers up into the sky
The mighty C.P.R.

It stretches from the Great Divide
North, South, East, and West,
Along the mountains wooded side,
The glacier's icy crest.
The lake, the chalet and the tree,
The carriage and the car,
All bear the famous words you see,
The famous C.P.R.

The rabbit squeaks upon the hill,
The eagle flaps her wings,
The marmot whistles by the rill,
The spotted throats sing;
The watchdog barks, the pony neighs
In his vernacular
Each in his language taught to
Praise
The glorious C.P.R.

Then come from north and come
from south,
And come from east and west,
Let words of praise be in your mouth
And shekels in your vest.
Blessed the traveller who spends,
And finds his dollars far.
They go to swell the dividends
And boom the C.P.R.

L'envoi.
The annotated guide I've read,
And folders I have seen,
And every advertisement spread
In every magazine;
And now that I the road can trace,
Through Heaven's gates ajar,
I'm going to the other place
Where there's no C.P.R.
